Cool Bugs and Native Plants: Adventures in Native Plant Gardening for Beginners

Saturday, March 30, 10:00–11:30

Learn the basics using native plants in gardens and the diversity of life created in even a small garden. Native plants bring insects, birds and other wildlife to your space. What's good? What's bad? Does that insect sting? What is that cool butterfly? Three years after slowly planting native plants in her own field, she has some answers to these questions. Jocelyn Demuth is the proprietor of Checkerspot Farm, a native plant nursery in Colrain, MA named after an elusive butterfly. Last year the farm's namesake returned to the native plant meadow attached to the farm. Jocelyn will share the ways that you can create space for and identify some of these interesting creatures who are the foundations of our ecosystems.

All ages are welcome, though this presentation will likely appeal to adults and children in grades 3 & up who have an existing interest in bugs.

This program is part of the Hampden-Hampshire Conservation District's Native Plants Education Series.

Please register in advance.

As in the last program, he will take a chronological approach to choosing different topics for listening and discussion, beginning in the Fall with the Middle Ages and Renaissance. Topics will include: musical forms; chant; historical musical instruments; specific genres of music; geographical considerations; and selected composers.
